DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Oppawsky et al. (German Patent No. 3,411,996).

Claims 1-3, 7, 12 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Gill et al. (United States Patent Publication No. 2004/0185413).

Claims 1-3, 5-7 and 10-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gill et al. (United States Patent Publication No. 2004/0029069).

Gill et al. disclose a curing light comprising a housing, a light source 20 mounted in the housing which emits radiation along an optical axis, and a fan 54 installed in the housing. Intake and exhaust vents are provided and the fan is mounted such that the flow of cooling air moves along a path transverse to the optical axis. The device further includes a heatsink 51 having fins. Regarding claim 3, it is to be understood that a fan inherently has at least one intake opening in which air is drawn into the fan and at least one exhaust opening on the opposite side from the intake opening out of which air is expelled from the fan.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lienhard (United States Patent No. 3,712,984) in view of Shikamo et al. (United States Patent No. 5,530,632).

Lienhard discloses the invention essentially as claimed except for the fan being disposed in the housing with the light source. Shikamo et al. disclose that it is known in the art to provide a light curing gun with a fan disposed within the gun housing in order to dissipate heat while the device is being used by the dentist. The fan is placed adjacent to the exhaust openings in the housing. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the light gun of Lienhard with a fan disposed in the housing of the gun in view of Shikamo et al. in order to dissipate heat from the light source during use by the dentist. Regarding claims 7-14, it would have been further obvious provide a heat sink having cooling ribs adjacent the fan and the light source in order to provide more efficient dissipation of heat. Such heat sinks are old and well known in the art. To make such heat sink cylindrical would have been an obvious matter of design choice to one skilled in the art. Regarding claim 19, to provide two fans would have been obvious to one skilled in the art, since it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Bemis Co., 193 USPQ 8.
